tuted a year ago and just now carried out with increased animation at the Corporation Cattle Market Princeton, In Secondary Section 10 Section ket, Islington, to encourage drovers, by whom the place is thronged, in the education and treatment of their dogs. The effect of this competition of their dogs. The effect of this competition is stated to be already extraordinary, not only in the improved quality and condition of the dogs, but also in the manners of the drovers themselves. Indigenously as rough a class as may be found in London, Sir John Monckton, who represented the Corporation in presenting the prizes, and Mr. Ralph, the best dog judge in England, who awarded them were enabled to speak in most satisfactory terms in these respects.

THE DIRECTORSHIP OF THE NATIONAL GALLERY. The proposal to be made by Mr. Whitmore to the Secretary of the Treasury to suspend the directorship of the National Gallery when Sir Frederic Ruston retires, and to let the salary accumulate and be added to the sum set aside annually for the purchase of pictures, is as an idea economical, but an economy open to question. Possibly during this vacation of the post a unique masterpiece might come into the market. Thus it might become the temporary property of a dealer and be subsequentby sold to the nation at a vastly enhanced price on the appointment of a new director. Altogether, perhaps we had better keep to the salaried official, but look sharply at the purchases and appoint him EDMUND YATES. yearly.

THE DRAMA.

LAWRENCE HANLEY IN "THE PLAYER."

A large audience of the kind that gives a pleasant but not a final judgment hailed a new star last night, which shone, appropriately enough, at the Star Theatre. He was Lawrence Hanley, a young man who has been known for some time through his acting of leading parts in support of others, and who now appears for the first time here at the head of his own company. He presented a strange sort of drama, called "The Player." It consists in the main of a rearrangement of "David Garrick," made with the aid of the older German and French plays on which Robertson's work was founded, but it is set in a more recent time than that which David Garrick adorned. The leading character in it is called Gustavus Brooke. and the performance Legins with two acts from "Hamlet," in which the heroine of the comedy, sliting in a box at the back of the stage, is supposed to see the object of her admiration play his part. The adapta-tion of the "David Garrick" part of the play has been made by Miss Blanche Marsden,

Such a combination as this was naturally in the nature of an experiment. Many probably went to the theatre with grave misglying. The most of them doubtless came away with an increased confidence in the result. The arrangement of the plays is obviously made for the purpose of allowing Mr. Hanley a large started before the schooners, have run away at opportunity for the display of versatility in acting two irts of widely different kinds. Whatever may be thought of the judiciousness of doing what Mr. Hanlev did at all, the admission has to be made that he did it well. Mr. Hanley has the most of his laurels yet to win, and he was obviously anxious about them. His anxiety weighed upon him at first in the seletions from "Hamlet," and he did not throw it off till reached the soliloquy which ends the second act. This he gave with fine effect, and after that all went He showed the earnestness of his study, especially in the scene with Ophelia and in the great sollloquy of the third act. In the later comedy the actor was bright, easy and graceful, and his per-formance of the drunken scene, with its quick transitions of mood, was a pleasant surprise to many who had seen him before only in serious parts.

Among the other members of the company the pleasantest impression was made by Miss Victory teman, as Ophelia. R. F. McClarnin, as Chifford, the part corresponding to that of Ingot in "David Garrick," was also pleasing, and so were Miss Harriet Amboy as Ada, and Miss Jennie Reiffarth as Mrs. Smith. Mr. Hanley was required to make a short speech after the third act.

"THE NEW SOUTH" AT THE MADISON SQUARE. For the first time in nearly two years a change of bill was made at the Madison Square Theatre last night. The play presented, however, was not new to this city. It was "The New South," which was given at another theatre last season and attracted favorable attention. It is melodramatic in its nature, but not Its plot is strong and good and its ineldents well arranged. The story is based on an entirely possible abuse of a dangerous convict labor system, and the subject is less backneyed than that of most plays of its class. The leading characters are competently played, as before, by Joseph Grismer and Miss Phoebe Davis. The play and the performance have already been popular, especially on the road, and are likely to continue so.

"THE BLACK CROOK" REVIVED.

At the Academy of Music last evening "The Black In it since it was last seen at this house, a few months ago, but it is always "The Black Crook" and nothing else. The ballets have been rearranged, the special ties have been readjusted and there are new costume and new scenery. All the old glitter is there and the element of the fairy story remains, wherefore the audience and the enjoyment were both as great as usual.

FATHER TREACY BACK IN THE CHURCH.

HE IS SAID TO HAVE BEEN RESTORED TO HIS PUNCTIONS BY MONSIGNOR SATOLLI.

Swedesboro, N. J., Aug. 14.-The Rev. William P. Treacy, it is reported, has been freed from censure and fully reconciled to the Catholic Church. He says that Monsignor Satolii, the Apostolic Delegate, has freed him from his disability, and that he is now in good standing in the Church. Father Treasy also says that Archbishop satolf gave to him a letter of recommendation to all bishops in the country. It is under stood that Father Treacy went to Washington recently and had an andience with the ablegate, at which he made a full and ample apology for the actions which brought him into conflict with his superiors. Futher Treacy and his former followers are jubilant over his Pishop O'Farrell, who arrived here to-day, said that the restoration of Father Treacy was news to him. For some time he had known that Father Trency de stred to apologize and become reconciled to the Church. He was willing to forgive Father Treacy during his last visit to Swedesboto, if an apology had been made in the proper spirit.

A NEW COMPLICATION FOR COLORADO BANKS. Pueblo, Col., Aug. 14.-A new complication is about to force itself upon some or perhaps all the closed National banks here. There are about 360 Halland and other foreign laborers who are among the de-positors. These people are returning to their native and as fast as they can settle their business affairs. A large number who are arixious to go have been waiting for the closed banks to reopen, so that they can get their money. They have communicated with the Italian Minister at Washington through their Consul at St. Louis on the subject, and have been advised that there are treaty and commercial relations existing between the two governments that will compel the banks to pay their foreign depositors as soon as the matter can be brought before the proper authorities, and not unnecessarily detain them in this country cannot their will, and to the detriment of their painters interests.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Aug. 14.-Over blue, foamflecked seas, which sparkled in the bright sunlight, Newport to Vineyard Haven to-day. It was the Senater Hill had urgent need of the Boss's counsel the fleet of the New-York Yacht Club swept from most successful run of the cruise so far, for a stiff breeze blew out of the north, cool and refreshing, filling the white and shining canvases of the racers and giving the big cup-defenders a chance to show their comparative merits. Of the cup-defenders, the Vigilant, Colonia and Jubilee started, the Piterin remaining at a referr to Nov. started, the Pilgrim remaining at anchor in New-port Harbor. It was a great and glorious victory or tittle of command, and that his purpose is to pected of her. When, about 4 o'clock in the after- characterized his leadership from the time he two cup-defenders were far astern, and behind them the rest of the fleet, strewn along the windswept waters of Vineyard Sound, a procession of sails the tail of which was almost as far west as the cliffs of Gay Head. The schooner Lasca the left of the schooner Lasca the left of the west down at the school of the west down at the school of the west down at the west down sailed a good race, leading the entire fleet over the course and coming into port ahead even of the cup-defenders.

The wind was blowing a stiff breeze from the north and the tide was running ebb when, at 9 by no other means, his friends say, can be e o'clock, Commodore Morgan signalled the fleet to size the fact that his grip upon the State much get under way, and steamed in his flagship May out to Brenton's Reef to establish a starting line for such yachts as desired to race. It was decided to depart a little from the established usage in starting the yachts to-day, and the changes made proved wise ones. The sloops, excepting the cup-defenders, were started first, the schooners second and the cup-defenders last, with a one-gun start. once from the rest of the fleet, and those who saw the contest between them could not see the races between the other boats, which were taking place far astern. By the system adopted to-day it was sought to keep the fleet together for at least portion of the run. The signal for the sloops other than the cup-defenders to start was given at 19:15. The sloops were all bunched together astern of the flagship when the gun was fired, and they made for the line with a rush. They crossed on the port tack in the following order: Huron on the port tack in the following Char-Wasp, Bedouin, Queen Mab, Katrina, Eclipse, Har-poon, Wayward and Jessica. The Jessica was unfortunate in getting a good position at the start, and was handicapped thirty seconds. The schooners were started at 10:20, and crossed as follows: Ariel, Alcaea, Lasca, Volunteer, Ramona, Dauntless, Palmer, Constellation, Neaera, Yampa, Sham

The cup-defenders were not started until 10:35.

The big sloops were each now trying to get a good. position near the line, and doing some skilful manoeuvring, when the signal to cross was given The Jubilee lay close to the line and so far up the wind that she had little headway. The Vigilant and Colonia were further from the line, the Vigilant being ahead of the keel-boat, but had a good headway on and had well calculated the time and distance. So when the starting gun was fired the Vigilant went over first, with the Colonia econd and the Jubilee third.

The fleet was reaching away now toward where, beyond the horizon, lay the lightship and the rocks off Cuttyhunk, which mark the entrance into Vineyard Sound. Then by the fleet swept the great cup-defenders, going at a speed that was exhila-rating, swift and beautiful and bright, like live things of majesty and power. The Jubilee tried fight among themselves to cross the bows of the Vigilant, but was unable to do so, and there was not room enough for her to Ugh, they make lets of trouble," said Damoder Gordcross between the Vigilant and the Colonia. The result was that the Jubilee had to pass astern of the two boats, in order to lay her course up the Sound. The Vigilant put on a burst of speed and opened up a long space of shining water be tween herself and the other two cup-defenders. Gay Head was reached the wind came out of the uthwest, and the yachts set spinnakers to starboard and balloon jib-topsails to port. The Jubilee was trying hard to pass the Colonia. She would run up on her and blanke up, but each time the Colonia would slip away up, but each time the Colonia would slip away from the lec of the towering sails that followed her. It seemed like a hopeless task for the Jubilee. Finally, however, just before the finish, the Jubilee succeeded in her purpose. She came up on the Colonia wih a rush, took the wind out of her sails by blanketing her, and then slid rapidly through her lee.

The finish was a beautiful sight, and the shore of East and West Chop were crowded with speciators. The time of the race was as follows:

IF NUMBER CROKER, SHEERAN AND THE RULER OF KINGS COUNTY OPPOSE HIM, HE

WILL HAVE A HARD TIME IN CARRYING OUT HIS PLAN. Senators Hill and Murphy went back to Washington vesterday, leaving the Democratic politicians and prophets discussing the possible tendencies of the fall campaign and speculating upon the ability of the sendor senator to direct the course of the party this year. Mr. Hill's visit to Hugh McLaughlin at the latter's summer home at Greenport, L. L. furnished ing which many local statesmen entered into with great interest. That the trip was suddenly underaken and was practically unannounced was questioned by few. It was also generally accepted to mean that for the Vigilant, the powerful boat showing speed control the affairs of the party with the same high-which surpassed even what her admirers had exnoon, she swept majestically by the red lighthouse on the green heights of the West Chop, the other thrown down at Chicago Mr. Hill has been exceedceive no consideration at the Senator's hands. ticket will be made up of straighout, ironbound, copper-fastened machine men who have never wavered

In their allegiance to Mr. Hill. By no other means, his friends say, can he emphaunshaken so effectually as in the nomination of Judge Maynard for the Court of Appeals. This has, there fore, been settled upon as the first and indispensable requirement which the men who take their orders from the Senator must agree to. Mr. Hill sees in the nomination of Maynard and his election his own "vindica tion." It would furnish the first opportunity which the people of the state have had to pass directly upon the gigantic crime of the tueit of the Senate of 1891. If Maynard can be elected to the high place which Governor Flower gave him as a reward for his partici pation in Hill's plot to reverse the will of the people Hill can thereafter point to it as an indorsement of he infamous means which he employed.

It is not forgotten that Mr. Hill's lie forgotten that Mr. Hill's lieutenants ar lar from unanimous in their assent to his plan e campaign. Murphy and Croker have informed him campaign. Murphy and Croker have informed him that in their ordinion Maynard's nomination would be a political blunder. Sheehan shares their views, but will do as Hill directs. What Hugh McLaughlin thinks has not yet been made known. Should be join with Croker and Murphy Mr. Hill will meet serious obstacles in enforcing his orders in the State Convention. Democrats are scanning the situation with anxiety and are wondering it he will reject the counsel of the leaders and attempt to run the convention alone.

WILLIAM EMMET SHIELDS.

After suffering for nearly three months with disease of the kidneys, Assemblyman William Emme Shields died yesterday, at 4 a. m., in the New-York Hospital He was born in 1858, in Williamsburg, where he spent most of his life. He received his early education in Public School No. 18, in Maujer-st., and studied law in the office of District-Attorney James W. Ridgway. On being admitted to the bar, he began the practice of law and entered politics at As he came from a family of Demoerats he naturally took that side of the political In 1850 he was elected to the Assembly, and was re-elected three times in succession. In his third term he introduced a bill in the Legislature for the suppression of bone boiling within the three-mile limit. The bill became a law, and several proprietors of hone-boiling establishments appealed to the Court of Appeals, but that court sustained the law.

Mr. Shields was first taken ill about three months ago with a tumer in his right kidney. He was attended by several Brooklyn physicians, who decide that an operation must be performed on him, he was removed to the New-York Hospital for that purpose. It was found impossible to remove the tumor, however, without immediate fatal results. He leaves a wife and two children at his home, No. 355 Humboldt st. His funeral will take place to-morrow, at 2 p. m., at his home.

DANFORTH'S DISGRACEFUL METHODS.

HE SHOULD BE CALLED TO ACCOUNT. The revelations of State Treasurer Danforth's im proper management of the State's money, of which he is custodian, are so serious and damaging that it is the bounden duty of Governor Flower to cal him to account. If the charges made against him are sustained he deserves dismissal from office. From The Buffalo Commercial.

A WRETCHED PIECE OF BUSINESS.

From The Newark Advertiser.

It was a wretched piece of business all around, and it places Treasurer banforth and the bank officers in a discreditable position. The best thing Danforth can do is to retire from circulation. He is totally until to be at the head of the financial department of the chief State of the Union.

LENOX HILL DESERTED.

ITS PLEASURE CLUB HAS A HOLIDAY.

MARCHING TO THE BOAT TO MUSIC-SPORTS AT

THE GROVE. It may "rain black eagles," as it does when the young "War Lord" of Germany has an outing; but when the members of the Lenox Hill Club go into the easy victory to-day. Hobart and Wrenn will play it rains white caps; yes, white caps with peaks, and also bamboo canes, and rosettes and boutonnieres and a whole lot of other things. Although not yet two years in existence, the club has a membership of several hundred and occupies a handsome home at No. 1,227 Third-ave., and when they went out yesterday, bedecked in all their finery, it was for the econd time they showed themselves on a summer excursion The club had a band, and as most of the members belong to the XXth Assembly District, they created quite a stir in the forenoon of yesterday in the neigh-borhood of Firty-ninth and Seventy-ninth sts. and from Fifth-ave, to the East River as they marched through he streets on their way to the steamer Chancellor at sixty-third-st, and the East River. Their destination was Donnelly's, at College Point. They had a most enjoyable time on the boat. It was only, however, when they reached their destination that the real fun There are many interesting persons con nected with the club. P. J. They say that "Tom" Dunn is the handsomest man of the thirty Democratic district leaders in the city, and his brother "Bart" looks so like him that they are scarcely known apart, P. J. Andrews, the president of the cinb, has the faculty of making friends and of never giving offence to anybody. Being a Dublin man, he says he will "never die easy" until he sees "Tim" Healy Speaker of the House of Commons in the Irish Parliament in College Green, "Mike" Keefe, one of the oldest members of the club, who tried to foment a Fenian rebellion in Ireland once, says that he "doesn't care what becomes of 'Tim' Healy or any other Healy"; that he's "an American now all the time"; while John Fitzpatrick, who runs "Ton" Dann a good second in being the handsomest in the district, says he agrees with "Mike," and asserts with emphasis every time he gets a chance the patriotic announcement that "this country is good enough for me." "Tom" Campbell and "Billy" lancy, the secretaries, are july fellows, and it has

They raced through the tall grass, were photo. gridled, and followed, and in point of kick, captared it greated pig. In the course of the hurry sturry the pig was roughly handled and took advantage of the first chance it got to die. Some person or persons then are it. Men's tastes differ, however, and there were those who did not join in pursuit of the pig. They lay in wait for other things. In a quiet shady place they sat playing what has come to be known a "stiff game." John Mailon was there, and so was "Charley" Giblin, "Billy" McKean, "Dan' Brown, "Bob" Tighe and many others. "Charley" Giblin asked Mailon after he had received a splentid hand why it was that he was like the Prince of Wales, but Mr. Mailon could not tell. "Because you have a royal flush," said Giblin. "Even so," at sweet Mailon, "lent I would like to tell you, Charley, that it is your tongue that made you bald."

"Have a little more of the lobster, John," said Giblin.

With pleasantries such as these the day was spent,

With pleasantries such as these the day was spent, and when they got home late at night the members of the club pointed the XXth Assembly District red and goodly sized slices of the adjoining districts as well. A gold watch and chain were presented to "Tom" Dunn while on the excursion.

SONS OF VETERANS IN CONVENTION.

Cincinnati, Aug. 14.-The National convention of the Sons of Veterans began a five days' session here to-day. The Ladies' Aid Society holds its convention in conjunction with that of the Sons of Veterans. The only business of the morning was the meeting National Council to arrange the order of committee reports. The convention proper will open for business at Pike's Opera House to morrow morning. The programme of the week includes a camp-fire and a visit to the Zoological Gardens tomorrow; on Wednesday a grand military ball at Scottish Rite Cathedral; on Thursday, a street military parade, and on Friday, the convention will close with an excursion to the Soldiers' Home, at Dayton, where the newly elected officers will be installed.

FINDING OUT HOW MUCH THE TOWN HAS LOST. The report of J. Lee Nicholson, the expert accountant the examined t e books of Moses P. Smith, the Collector and Treasurer of South Orange, N. J., made at last night's meeting of the Township Committee, showed that night's meeting of the Township Committee, showed that, the Collector had misappropriated $14,450 CS. Of this amount about $1,000 is lost to the township because the bonds have expired. The Collector is also short about $1,000 of the school fafes. Ex-Postmaster Norman R. Burgbardt was appointed to fill the vacancy.
